

NEW Raduga po-novomu

By S. Jelínek, R. Hříbková, H. Žofková,
L. Alexejeva

Russian for beginners from 13 years in five levels. The individual levels correspond to levels A1-B1 of the CEFR for Languages. Vocabulary and cultural information are presented in intercultural contexts. The whole series is based on the linguodidactic concept. Developing communicative competence of students is supported by the gradual verification of linguistic knowledge in functional and system context. This implies an activity approach to teaching, which stems mainly from the didactically prepared grammar. Particular attention is paid to motivation of pupils, aesthetic and ethical aspects of foreign language teaching. Crucial focus is paid on Russian contemporary life. The textbooks contain a large number of cross-curricular links. The layout plays an important role in all levels of Raduga po-novomu, which facilitates the orientation of teachers and students in lesson building. To a large extent, photographs are used to show the cultural information.

The coursebook is accompanied by a workbook, audio recordings and a teaching guide. The first volume of the coursebook is also available in interactive form.

NEW Cursus

A single-volume language course for Latin at Secondary Stage 1 (approx. equivalent to years 5-10 or level 2 of the International Standard Classification of Education ISCED), the new Cursus – Edition N has been developed for skills-based curricula:

- More specific practice: identifying forms instead of conjugating forms
- The main aim is that school students are able to identify forms within texts rather than to use them actively. Conjugation tasks have therefore been reduced to make space for identification tasks. In this way, the content of Cursus N has been significantly trimmed down while maintaining the same high level of language recognition.
- More skills-based orientation: methods pages

The newly-developed methods pages were designed to fulfill the need for more methodical training. Various analytical methods are explained briefly and in a way appropriate for school students. Simple sentence analysis, period analysis and grammar are all covered.

- Easier orientation for teachers
- The identification of skills and optional material in the contents list and individual exercises provides teachers with a better overview, making it easy to shorten lessons when time is limited.

NEW Via mea

Via mea builds upon a model of competence which has been specifically developed by the publishers. This model organises the three components: language (word, form and sentence), text and culture on three levels:

- Knowing
- Understanding
- Performing

Following the principle of structured learning, these areas of competence are signalled by symbols throughout the course book.

Explanatory texts, illustrations and cultural and historical information lighten the Latin texts. Via mea motivates learners to explore the language and learn about grammatical phenomena inductively.

There are materials for vocabulary work, verb conjugation and parsing/sentence analysis, as well as brief topical context information, providing a systematic lead-up to translation.

Each lesson concludes with a test text. Students are thus able to test their abilities in the areas of preliminary text analysis, translation and linguistic analysis.

The workbooks with detachable solution pages are available with a choice of audio-CD or CD-ROM. The CD-ROM contains a vocabulary and grammar trainer specifically designed to complement the book.

This accompanying software includes around 70 interactive whiteboard pages on the subjects text work, grammar and vocabulary.

NEW Res Romanae compact

The multimedia vademecum for advanced level Latin classes featuring text study. The texts are confined to the core areas of Roman culture and Latin literature, and compiled in a collection appropriate for school students.

- Prominently-placed basic information gives a necessary insight into the subject-matter.
- The influence of Virgil on subsequent ages right up to the present day becomes clear.
- Language-based structure and layout guarantee readability.
- Photos and animated sequences on DVD-ROM bring Roman culture to life.

res romanae compact – for a solid overview of all areas of Roman life and its influence on modern language and literature.

Salvete

The new edition develops the tried and trusted concepts of Salvete even further and at the same time sets new trends for Latin tuition. It can be used for students in school years 5 to 10 (ages 10 to 16).

The methods pages of Salvete provide a systematic guide to improving translating ability. Nine double-page spreads on translation training impart the basic skills. Vocabulary, form and syntax are increased step-by step in this method course. Attractive exercises increase motivation. Further components (Workbook, Teacher's book, Class test, Vocabulary list) are also available.

For example:

Salvete Complete Volume

Videte Grammar

The Latin grammar Videte is designed for use in both the textbook language learning phase (10 years of age) and in the later literature reading phase (up to age 16).

This systematically organized grammar is designed to promote students' ability to translate. Clear model sentences, explanations, tables and strategic advice aid text comprehension. Where appropriate, Videte also includes details comparable to modern language publications.

The vocabulary used in Videte is based on SALVETE, but the book can be used with all current textbooks.
