Dialog New Edition

This work is aimed at complete beginners with no prior knowledge and is suited for learners stating at age 10 to 13. The series is based on the latest communicative methods. A variety of exercises covers differing needs for practice. Special emphasis is placed on intercultural and supralinguistic learning. In particular, learning experience gained from English as a first foreign language is reactivated and drawn upon. These learning techniques from the first foreign language are revised and developed further. A new feature is the learner's grammar, which is found in the workbook. These pages can be separated from the book and used as a starting point for the student's own grammar notes. The learner can add his or her own examples or other useful notes to the grammar overviews, which are based on language functions. The work is divided into the preparatory unit "Start", an introduction to the phonetic system and script, and three lesson units. Each lesson unit is comprised of four sections, whereby the last is the so-called "Additum", which contains revision exercises, interesting cultural and geographical material and exercises for learners with Russian family backgrounds. In addition to the student's book, a workbook, vocabulary book, an audio CD and a teacher's book are available.

NEW Privet! New three-volume concept

Privet! builds on learners' existing knowledge of their first and second foreign languages. The clear and well-organized layout is particularly oriented to the needs of younger learners.

Volumes 1 and 2 focus on language skills up to level B1 of the CEFR and present lexical and grammatical aspects of the Russian language in steep progression: Each section begins with accessible pages containing tasks for learners that introduce the theme of the section in terms of content and language. Texts and exercises included in the textbook are designed to develop all aspects of language use – listening, speaking, reading, writing, mediation – in individual and group contexts.

Intercultural learning is a key focus and each section includes pages devoted to specific aspects of culture and national life. Authentic materials are employed to reflect life in Russia.

The textbook is also designed to animate learners to work with the language dossier and to evaluate their own progress.

All lessons offer a range of different approaches.

At the end of each section, learners have the opportunity to review the new grammatical points that have been introduced. Privet! 3 provides a transition to upper level learning in the form of five modules and a methodology section.

NEW Raduga po-novomu

By S. Jelínek, R. Hříbková, H. Žofková,
L. Alexejeva

Russian for beginners from 13 years in five levels. The individual levels correspond to levels A1-B1 of the CEFR for Languages. Vocabulary and cultural information are presented in intercultural contexts. The whole series is based on the linguodidactic concept. Developing communicative competence of students is supported by the gradual verification of linguistic knowledge in functional and system context. This implies an activity approach to teaching, which stems mainly from the didactically prepared grammar. Particular attention is paid to motivation of pupils, aesthetic and ethical aspects of foreign language teaching. Crucial focus is paid on Russian contemporary life. The textbooks contain a large number of cross-curricular links. The layout plays an important role in all levels of Raduga po-novomu, which facilitates the orientation of teachers and students in lesson building. To a large extent, photographs are used to show the cultural informaton.

The coursebook is accompanied by a workbook, audio recordings and a teaching guide. The first volume of the coursebook is also available in interactive form.

NEW Cursus

A single-volume language course for Latin at Secondary Stage 1 (approx. equivalent to years 5-10 or level 2 of the International Standard Classification of Education ISCED), the new Cursus – Edition N has been developed for skills-based curricula:

- More specific practice: identifying forms instead of conjugating forms
- The main aim is that school students are able to identify forms within texts rather than to use them actively. Conjugation tasks have therefore been reduced to make space for identification tasks. In this way, the content of Cursus N has been significantly trimmed down while maintaining the same high level of language recognition.
- More skills-based orientation: methods pages

The newly-developed methods pages were designed to fulfill the need for more methodical training. Various analytical methods are explained briefly and in a way appropriate for school students. Simple sentence analysis, period analysis and grammar are all covered.

- Easier orientation for teachers
- The identification of skills and optional material in the contents list and individual exercises provides teachers with a better overview, making it easy to shorten lessons when time is limited.
